Baby's name conceived by Canadians

HAITI A baby girl has been born in Haiti, and her name was born in Canada.

Monique-Lucie Marie, who weighs about six pounds, was delivered yesterday at a Canadian military hospital.

She is the first baby to be delivered there, although others have been born at the Canadian clinic a two-hour drive away in the hard-hit town of Leogane.

But this one had a special ending: A pair of Canadian medical technicians, Cpl. Monique Bartlett and Master Cpl. Lucie Rouleau, helped deliver the baby, which led to her mother's choice of name. THE CANADIAN PRESS

By the numbers

No surprise rare happenings occur in waves: Professor

Scary numbers have dominated Toronto headlines this month: Seven dead in seven days. Fourteen pedestrians killed across the GTA. The deadliest January for city pedestrians in a decade.

No wonder people are walking scared.

There is a tendency to grip these disturbing numbers and wring them for meaning. But for statisticians, maybe there is no meaning behind the numbers, just probability.

31.9

Seven isn't that big a number when looked at through a statistician's lens. Jeffrey Rosenthal calculates that between 2000 and 2009, Toronto witnessed an average of 31.9 pedestrian deaths per year and 2.7 deaths per month. Using Poisson distribution, this means there is about a 1.9 per cent chance of there being seven or more pedestrian deaths in a single month.

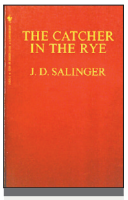
"Chances of a big clump are more than you would think," said Jeffrey Rosenthal, a professor of statistics at the University of Toronto. "Yes, (the numbers) are rare and January was certainly much worse than usual, but it wasn't something that is completely unexpected."

Plane crashes, lightning strikes — for probability theorists, it's no surprise that such rare happenings often occur in waves.

Rosenthal, who authored Struck by Lightning: The Curious World of Probabilities, explains that random events are all subject to a statistical phenomenon called Poisson bursts, named for the 19th-century mathematician Siméon Denis Poisson. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Author Salinger dead at 91

OBIT J.D. Salinger, the legendary author, youth hero and fugitive from fame whose The Catcher In The Rye shocked and inspired a world he increasingly shunned, has died. He was 91.



Salinger died of natural causes at his home Wednesday, the author's son said in a statement from Salinger's longtime literary representative, Harold Ober Agency. He had lived for decades in self-imposed isolation in the small, remote house in Cornish, N.H.

The Catcher In The Rye, with its immortal teenage protagonist, the twisted, rebellious Holden Caulfield, came out in 1951, a time of anxious, Cold War conformity and the dawn of modern adolescence.

The Book-of-the-Month Club, which made Catcher a featured selection, advised that for "anyone who has ever brought up a son" the novel will be "a source of wonder and delight — and concern." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lennon

• The cult of Catcher turned tragic in 1980 when crazed Beatles fan Mark David Chapman shot and killed John Lennon, citing J.D. Salinger's novel as an inspiration and stating that "this extraordinary book holds many answers."

No decision on street racing appeal

The Ontario Court of Appeal has reserved its decision on the Crown's appeal of a ruling that overturned a conviction under Ontario's stunt driving law. The three-judge panel gave no indication when it would issue a decision. The Crown appealed after Justice Geoffrey Griffin of the Ontario Court of Justice in Napanee overturned 62-year-old Jane Raham of Oakville's guilty verdict last September.

Glass from financial tower shatters onto King St. W

A block of the Financial District was closed for five hours after window panes fell 27 floors from a King Street West skyscraper Thursday morning, littering the ground below with shattered glass.

Pieces of glass from three large windows fell from the Royal Trust Tower at 77 King St. W., next to the TD Canada Trust building, after a piece of wood slammed into the 27th and 28th floors at about 8 a.m., police said.

The street was reopened at 3:45 p.m.

Strong gusts of wind that caused the scaffolding to crash into the windows also made the area more hazardous, said Staff Sgt. John Boyce of 52 Division. He said the windows are about 10 feet tall and 5 feet wide.

"Glass was falling around us while we were here and shattered near our feet," Van Veghel said, while at the scene. She said all she could hear was "just a loud, loud crash.

> "Glass was falling around us while we were here and shattered near our feet."
> Sgt. Nancy Van Veghel

"It was only about 10 feet from us, and I don't think it was a huge piece, but we realized we had to completely shut down immediately."

The wood swung from construction on the north side of the First Canadian Place building across the street, said Toronto police Sgt. Nancy Van Veghel.

Van Veghel said shards of glass and debris fell from the skyscraper throughout the morning as construction workers replaced the broken windows. Pedestrians and traffic were still moving on the streets below until King Street was closed around 11 a.m. between York and Bay streets.

Heath Applebaum, spokesman for Cadillac Fairview, the tower's owner, said the affected floors are occupied by PricewaterhouseCoopers Canada, and said via email that "fortunately ... no employees were in their offices at the time of the accident."

Laptops stolen with records of 8,600 teachers

SMASH AND GRAB Laptops containing sensitive and unencrypted records belonging to about 8,600 Ontario teachers have reportedly been stolen.

CBC News says three laptops containing teachers' names, addresses and social insurance numbers were stolen from the Waterloo, Ont., offices of the Ontario Teachers Insurance Plan on Dec. 3.

Most of the teachers work at elementary schools for the Toronto District School Board, who were informed of the theft last week.

The thieves also broke into a cafeteria cash register in a theft Waterloo Regional Police characterize as a routine "smash and grab."

This theft comes a month after a health worker in Whitby lost a USB key containing the names and OHIP numbers of 80,000 people in Durham Region.

This prompted Ontario's privacy commissioner to order government agencies to encrypt personal information on devices such as USB keys and laptops.

Break out the long johns: T.O. under extreme cold alert

WEATHER The city issued an extreme cold weather alert Thursday, the third this year, as Environment Canada was predicting the coldest night in Toronto so far this winter season.

Temperatures were expected to plunge to –16C across the GTA, topping the –15.7C recorded on Dec. 29 when the first cold weather alert was issued. The windchill made it feel more like –20C to –25C.

Environment Canada meteorologist Geoff Coulson said cold Arctic air mass straight from Nunavut moved to Ontario, and predicts that although there will be plenty of sunshine through the weekend it will stay very cold, with a low of –14C on Monday.

-25 The temp with windchill Thursday evening. Environment Canada predicts cold weather through the weekend.

Although there will be light flurries, Coulson doesn't expect significant snowfall.

Thursday was the fifth time the city experienced severe cold weather this winter. Alerts are issued when Environment Canada predicts temperatures of –15C or lower, without wind chill.

The city issued alerts covering 27 nights of extreme cold weather in the 2008-09 winter season.

Health care's 'future' now at city hospitals

Pharmacy in a box available 24 hours a day

In a world where modern convenience is synonymous with machines, the introduction of a so-called "pharmacy in a box" will create efficiency for the people of Ontario, say its creators.

The large green and white kiosks resemble ATM machines and dispense pills like vending machines. With a real pharmacist linked in by video, the mini-pharmacies can take a patient's prescription and dispense medication any time of day.

Four of the kiosks have already landed in Toronto-area hospitals, according to the Ontario Hospital Association, and eight more kiosks will be added to hospitals and remote areas across the province.

"We see this concept, this idea of two-way video conferencing to a pharmacist, as the way of the future in health care," said Tom Closson, the association's president and chief executive officer, as he described the machine as the beginning of a virtual approach to the delivery of health services in Canada.

With a prescription, a patient can pick up a phone attached to the machine and reach a pharmacist through video conference 24 hours a day. The pharmacist can counsel the patient and has full control of the medication being dispensed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Local plant ramps up to fix Toyota defect

MANUFACTURING A Toyota supplier says it is ramping up production at three plants, including one in Ontario, to meet demand for a redesigned pedal that will replace a faulty part implicated in a massive vehicle recall.

CTS Corp., an auto parts supplier based in Indiana, manufactured the faulty pedal that resulted in the recall of 2.3 million vehicles in the U.S. and 270,000 in Canada, as well as a company-mandated sales suspension of the affected vehicles.

Chairman and CEO Vinod Khilnani said Thursday that Toyota and CTS have designed a new pedal that fixes the defect. That new pedal is already being produced at the three CTS plants which currently supply Toyota. These include a plant in Mississauga, which employs about 150 people.

"We have been asked to ramp up the production as fast as we can and we are in the process of adding some capital expenditure, additional production lines, to meet their needs as quickly as possible," Khilnani said on a conference call.

There has been speculation that Toyota could use pedals manufactured by Japanese supplier Denso Corp. — which employs about 300 people at a plant in Guelph — to replace the faulty CTS pedals, but Khilnani dismissed this.

In a release sent out Thursday, Toyota confirmed that redesigned pedals are in "full production" at CTS plants. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Verdict in Khadr case

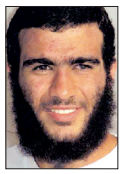
Court to decide if Canada must seek repatriation

Toronto-born Omar Khadr will find out Friday whether the Harper government has a legal obligation to seek his return from a U.S. military prison.

A keenly awaited Supreme Court of Canada decision in his case is also expected to help clarify the extent to which the courts can wade into federal decision-making about foreign policy matters.

The ruling follows a one-day hearing before the high court last November that highlighted the deep, emotionally charged differences over Canada's role in Khadr's treatment.

Should the court direct the government to ask Washington for Khadr's return, it will set off a new round of debate over what to do with him once back on Canadian soil.



Omar Khadr

Khadr, 23, is being held by the Americans at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for allegedly throwing a grenade that killed a U.S. soldier in Afghanistan more than seven years ago.

The Conservative government strongly opposes Khadr's repatriation, but his lawyers and several interested groups — including Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch and the Canadian Bar Association — argue Canada should request his return.

The Federal Court of Canada ruled last April that the Conservative government must ask the United States to return Khadr "as soon as practicable." It said Canada's refusal to request his repatriation offends fundamental justice and violates Khadr's constitutional rights to life, liberty and security of the person.

College teachers' union rejects 'final' offer

LABOUR The union for Ontario's community colleges said Thursday that it will not take a rejected "final" offer from the college directly to the teachers.

Ontario's College Compensation and Appointments Council made the offer to OPSEU on Wednesday. After the union rejected the offer, college management asked OPSEU to bring it back to the 9,000 members for a vote.

The council said the offer was better than previous ones because it shortens the contract to three years, and offers a slightly higher salary increase.

"We've been bargaining for quite some time and we've offered everything we can afford and everything we can accept," said Nancy Hood, vice-chair of the college's academic bargaining team.

Clinton praises Canada for its response to Haiti

Haiti Crisis

GENEROSITY Bill Clinton is singling out Canadians for their generosity to Haiti.

Clinton is U.S. President Barack Obama's top adviser on the post-earthquake aid effort, and he was at the Davos World Economic Forum urging the rich and powerful not to forget quake-stricken Haiti.

After meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper on Thursday, Clinton made a point of saying Canadians should be proud of their huge outpouring of support and money for victims of the Jan. 12 earthquake that flattened much of Haiti.

"It has been unbelievable. First, the Canadian people are so generous," said the former U.S. president. "I'll bet you on a per-capita basis, they're No. 1 in the world now in helping Haiti."

Harper calls for G20 co-operation

PM says countries must put aside self-interest

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is warning other G20 leaders that the very body that eased the world out of recession could fail unless countries put their differences aside.

"It will stand or fall on its ability to demonstrate in the months to come the same co-operative spirit it has shown over the past year," Harper told an audience of bankers, business executives, government leaders and economists.

"I am hopeful."

In a speech Thursday at the Davos World Economic Forum in Switzerland, the prime minister laid out his priorities for the G20 and G8 summits that Canada will host at the end of June.

He credited unprecedented co-operation among G20 members for cushioning the blow of the recession last year, but said countries now need to embrace what he is calling "enlightened sovereignty."

That's when a country acts in the best interests of others because, in the end, the country's own self-interests will benefit.

"When the G20 resumes in Toronto, the discussion should be ... less about narrow self-interest in sovereignty's name, than an expanded view of mutual interest, in which there is room for all to grow and prosper."

Sask. to lead growth: CIBC

Ontario among Top 5 provinces

Saskatchewan will lead other Canadian provinces in economic growth this year, thanks to a rebound in the oil, potash, agriculture and uranium sectors, CIBC World Markets says in a report Thursday.

CIBC estimates Saskatchewan's economic output will grow three per cent in 2010 and 4.1 per cent in 2011.

That's well ahead of CIBC's estimate for Canada's overall growth this year, projected to be only 2.3 per cent above last year.

"The West will reap the benefits of reinvigorated Asia-Pacific growth," says economist Warren Lovely in CIBC's latest Economic Insights report.

CIBC projects British Columbia will have the second-fastest growing provincial economy this year at 2.8 per cent, followed by Newfoundland and Labrador at 2.6 per cent.

2.4% Ontario's economy will grow 2.4 per cent this year, according to a new CIBC report.

The other Top 5 provinces in 2010 will be Alberta and Ontario, tied at 2.4 per cent growth. Both had a rough 2009, with weakness in Alberta's oil and gas drilling sector and a slowdown in oilsands growth, and the restructuring of Ontario's automotive and manufacturing sectors, with numerous plant closures and job cuts.

P.E.I. will have the slowest expansion at 1.8 per cent, with Nova Scotia growing at 2.1 per cent and New Brunswick and Quebec tied at 2.2 per cent.

CIBC also projects Ontario's economy will grow 2.8 per cent in 2011.

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff answers a media question on Parliament Hill in Ottawa Thursday.

No election despite better poll numbers: Iggy

POLITICS Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff says he has no interest in trying to force an election this spring, even though his party appears to be on the comeback trail.

Recent public opinion polls suggest the Liberals are now in a statistical dead heat with the Conservatives, with support for each party hovering just above 30 per cent.

That's a big improvement for Liberals, who plunged as much as 15 points behind the Tories last fall after Ignatieff declared his intention to defeat Prime Minister Stephen Harper's minority government at the earliest opportunity.

Ignatieff has since dropped all talk of provoking an election and the improving poll numbers aren't enticing enough for him to resume sabre rattling.

He says he wants to continue seeing his party through a renewal process and earning the trust of Canadians.

The gap between the two main parties has evaporated in the wake of Harper's controversial decision to prorogue Parliament until March. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charges stayed after violent arrest

COURT Charges have been stayed against a University of Western Ontario student whose violent arrest in October 2009 was caught on video and posted on YouTube.

The Crown agreed to stay charges against Irnes Zeljkovic, 22, yesterday as long as he continues receiving psychiatric treatment.

In the 90-second video, the suspect is punched, kneed and hit with a baton in the Social Sciences Centre as campus and London police officers order him to stop resisting.

Police have maintained the level of force used was justified and cautioned the video didn't tell the whole story, saying the suspect had earlier been combative and was resisting arrest. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Former French PM acquitted

A French court acquitted former prime minister Dominique de Villepin Thursday of playing a role in a smear campaign against President Nicolas Sarkozy, capping a trial that exposed a bitter rivalry between the two politicians. The acquittal paves the way for de Villepin, left, to try to return to politics, including a possible run for the presidency in 2012. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Something's fowl on NYC subway

VIDEO New York City's transit authority is investigating a video posted online that shows a man kissing and snuggling a live chicken aboard a subway. MTA spokesman Charles Seaton says the agency is looking into whether the Tuesday incident on the No. 6 train was a prank. The video shows the man hugging, kissing and caressing a chicken as he lays on the train's floor. Some passengers look on laughing, while others seem to hustle out of his way. Seaton says only service animals and those in containers are permitted in the subway system. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Girl's survival called a miracle

Pulled from rubble after 15 days, doctors 'surprised that she's alive'

Haiti Crisis

She is amazing her doctors, the 16-year-old choir girl who came close to dying but wouldn't in the crumbled concrete graveyard of Port-au-Prince.

More than two weeks after the earthquake brought down her school — and a day after she was lifted from the ruins — Darlene Etienne was eating yogurt, talking and regaining her strength Thursday.

"We are very surprised at the fact that she is still alive," said Dr. Evelyne Lambert, who is caring for her on a French hospital ship offshore.

One who didn't seem surprised was the girl's mother, a poor rice-and-vegetable peddler.

"I never thought she was dead," Kerline Dorcant said. "I always thought she was alive."

The astonishing rescue of the high school student by a French search team that refused to go home when others did offered a moment of joy in this grieving city, where uncounted thousands were entombed in a landscape of broken and heaped-up concrete, wood and metal.

"At the very beginning, she was in very poor condition, but now she has been stabilized," Lambert said, saying Darlene was drinking water and had eaten yogurt and mashed vegetables.

She estimated her chance of survival at 90 per cent.

Lambert expressed amazement at her survival, saying it seemed to defy "biological facts."

Human Rights Watch rejects Hamas claim

MIDDLE EAST A human rights group Thursday rejected a Hamas claim that it did not target civilians during last year's war against Israel, putting new pressure on the Islamic militant group days ahead of a UN deadline to respond to war crimes allegations. The new claims against Hamas could carry extra weight because they came from Human Rights Watch, a group Israel has accused of unfair bias against the Jewish state. The criticism drew fresh attention to Hamas actions in the three-week war, during which about 1,400 Palestinians — most of them civilians — and 13 Israelis were killed. Most international criticism, including by Human Rights Watch, has been directed toward Israel.

Both Israel and Hamas face a Feb. 5 deadline to respond to allegations in a UN report that they committed war crimes and possible crimes against humanity during the fighting.

News in brief

SOMALIA A boy who was horribly disfigured months ago by a stray bullet has died just days after reconstructive surgery, doctors said Thursday. The plight of eight-year-old Ahmed Mohamed Mohamoud was reported in November, two months after he was shot. Ahmed personified the civilian toll in the brutal conflict in Somalia. Dr. Peter Nthumba said Ahmed died late Wednesday of intestinal bleeding.

IRAQ A key al-Qaida figure involved in smuggling suicide bombers across the border from Syria was killed in a raid in northern Iraq, the U.S. military said Thursday. They called the death a blow to the insurgent organization in Iraq, though acknowledged it remains capable of carrying out co-ordinated assaults with large body counts.

Most Drivers Lost When Looking For The Lowest Car Insurance Rates

Why Is It So Hard To Find The Best Rates?

The truth is, it isn't as difficult as it seems once you know where to look. It pays to shop around – and car insurance is no different. But with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, getting references and competitive quotes from everyone takes too much time, right? Wrong. This is where InsuranceHotline.com can help. InsuranceHotline.com offers an independent, unbiased rate comparison from over 30 insurance companies to find you the lowest rate for your profile. It is fast, safe and FREE.

Does It Really Pay To Shop Around?

Most consumers fail to realize that the rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. The key to finding the best rate is to figure out which insurance company has the best rate for your particular situation. And with rates varying so wildly across companies, chances are you are not with the company that has the lowest rate for your profile right now.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"!

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company, agent or brokerage. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers.

By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Start Saving Your Money Now.

InsuranceHotline.com puts you in the driver seat by making insurance companies compete for your business. With quotes from over 30 insurance companies, InsuranceHotline.com is the simplest and easiest way to make sure you aren't overpaying for your car insurance. And it is completely FREE to use. So what are you waiting for?

Lift military gay ban: Obama

U.S. President Barack Obama is urging Congress to repeal the ban on gays and lesbians serving openly in the U.S. military, but Democratic allies and Republican opponents are criticizing his approach.

Obama's effort to eliminate the "don't ask, don't tell" practice faces resistance not just from Congress, but also from the Pentagon, where some top officials have been strident in their support for the 1990s-era policy.

Pentagon Press Secretary Geoff Morrell says the Defence Department next week will say for the first time how it would lift the ban on gays from serving openly in the U.S. military, as Obama wants.

Morrell says that after studying the issue for a year, Defence Secretary Robert Gates and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Mike Mullen, will discuss their "proposed way forward" before the Senate Armed Services Committee next Tuesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dog saved by crew

A frightened, shivering dog was rescued after floating 120 kilometres on an ice floe down Poland's Vistula River and into the Baltic Sea, officials said Thursday.

Now his saviours just have to figure out who really owns him.

Four people have already claimed him, but so far rescuers say there's been no wagging tail of joy from the miracle dog they nicknamed "Baltic."

The dog's frozen odyssey came as Poland suffers through a winter cold snap, with temperatures dipping to below –20 C.

The thick-furred male dog was found adrift Monday 24 kilometres out in the Baltic Sea by the crew of the Baltica, a Polish ship of ocean scientists carrying out research.

Researcher Natalia Drgas said the rescue was difficult and at one point it seemed the dog had drowned.

"It was really a tough struggle. It kept slipping into the water and crawling back on top of the ice. At one point it vanished underwater, under the ship and we thought it was the end, but it emerged again and crawled on an ice sheet," Drgas said. At that point, the crew lowered a pontoon down to the water and a crew member managed to grab the dog by the scruff of his neck and pull him to safety. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PUBLIC SAFETY MESSAGE FROM TORONTO HYDRO

Toronto Hydro-Electric System Limited has discovered instances of contact voltage. Contact voltage is electricity that may be present on the surface of outdoor structures like street lighting equipment, street signs and other energized fixtures, posing a serious shock hazard. In winter months, there's an increased chance of its presence.

To protect you and your pet, always avoid any electrical equipment or items that are powered by electricity like street signs. This includes walking around handwells (small, round metal covers located close to streetlight poles on the sidewalk).

Toronto Hydro is working to minimize the risk by scanning the streets, making repairs, and proactively replacing equipment where necessary, but we want you to know how to protect you and your pet.

If you think your pet is incapacitated due to shock:

STOP, CLEAR and CALL

- Stop and try not to touch your dog.
- Clear the area and pull your dog by the leash.
- Call for help.

Pedestrian safety requires money, will

UrbanCompass

One evening just before Christmas 2003, a car lurched off Eglinton Avenue onto Brentcliffe Road and ran over a friend of mine. She was following all the traffic rules when he mowed her down in the middle of the intersection and disappeared into the night, never to be apprehended.

Those few seconds defined the next years of my friend's life. A crushed knee. Breaks in both legs and her collarbone. Nerve damage in each arm. Two years on crutches and canes. A mild brain injury. Lost income.

An avid competitive sailor, she hasn't sailed since. She doesn't run anymore. She's only now trying to golf again.

And she was lucky. She survived.

The epidemic of pedestrian deaths during the last month has sparked calls for driver and pedestrian education programs and prompted Toronto police to get tough on downtown jaywalkers. This will help. American studies show that folks who walk and talk on their cellphones, for instance, are less aware of their surroundings and more likely to engage in dangerous behaviour at intersections.

Recent work by University of Guelph researchers found that while parents believe kids need to be taught about road safety, few actually provide any instruction when crossing streets with their children.

Education and tougher enforcement are attractive because they are relatively cheap. They are, however, insufficient.

Real improvements in pedestrian safety require money for road improvements and the political will to reignite the war-on-cars debate.

It takes money, for instance, to build median islands — halfway refuges for pedestrians who don't have time to make it across wide, multi-lane intersections.

It will take political will to delay drivers' green light signals at intersections, giving pedestrians a head start on crossing so they are more visible once traffic finally starts to move. Delays of this sort won't be popular with motorists. And they won't like speed reduction measures either.

The fact is, though, a pedestrian hit by a vehicle driven at 60 kilometres per hour has an 85 per cent chance of being killed. That drops to 20 per cent if the vehicle is going 30 km/h.

Drivers will find all of this difficult to stomach. But the pedestrian carnage is also difficult to stomach. A chat with the "lucky" ones like my friend puts it all in perspective.

Sounds too good to be true – it probably is

Marketplace

Admit it — at some time in your life you've said to yourself, "I wish I was rich."

That desire is not a crime — but it may be leading people to waste their money, and time, at a popular weekend workshop we've been investigating.

The workshop is called "Learn to Be Rich." Ads feature Robert Kiyosaki, author of Rich Dad, Poor Dad — a bestselling financial help book. And the workshops are popular — rolling into towns across Canada, filling ballrooms with people eager to learn how to turn around their financial fortunes.

People are told they will learn valuable skills in real estate development, or how to play the stock market. But at Marketplace, we were hearing complaints about the three-day workshops (that cost $500), so we decided to enrol in one on real estate.

The problems started within the first half-hour, where our instructor told us we weren't going to get the tools needed that weekend to get rich. Turns out, this weekend workshop was just a primer — we really needed to sign up for more advanced courses. And the cost for those? A mere $12,000 to $45,000!

But there was to be no discussion of the price — our trainer told us if we didn't like it, he would tell us to leave. Throughout the weekend, we felt bullied and pressured to sign up for the advanced courses (where the real money was to be made). There was some instruction, but when we met with real estate lawyer Bob Aaron, he called what we were taught "bad advice," and said many techniques were just plain "dumb."

To make matters worse, our instructor misled us with a whopper of a tale, and later blew up at participants because not enough people took the opportunity to shell out up to $45,000 for more courses. It left us questioning what financial guru Kiyosaki thought about it all.

When we caught up with him, even Kiyosaki admitted there were problems with some of the tactics used in these workshops.

Bottom line? That age old nugget holds — if a weekend workshop on how to be rich sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Erica Johnson co-hosts Marketplace on CBC Television, which airs Fridays at 8:30 p.m.

Toyota's woes grow

Carmaker extends pedal recall to China, Europe

Toyota is extending its recalls to fix gas pedals that could stick and cause acceleration — currently affecting models in Canada and the U.S. — to China and Europe.

Toyota has insisted the problem of sudden, uncontrolled acceleration was "rare and infrequent" and said dealers should deal with customers "on a case-by-case basis."

The gas pedals in question were made by Indiana-based CTS Corp. at its plant in Mississauga.

The automaker has informed Chinese authorities it will start a recall in February for 75,500 RAV4 sport utility vehicles that were manufactured in China between March 2009 and January 2010.

They use the same problem parts in accelerators that caused the recent spate of massive recalls in the U.S., she said.

In Europe, Toyota is still unsure how many vehicles are affected by the problem with pedals manufactured by CTS, headquartered in Elkhart, Ind.

Ford follows suit

- Ford Motor Co. has halted production of some full-sized commercial vehicles in China because they contain gas pedals built by the same company behind the accelerators in Toyota's recent recall.

U.S. figures show slow recovery

ECONOMY A drop in new U.S. jobless claims came in short of expectations and factory orders rose only slightly, fresh evidence the U.S. economy is recovering at a slow, uneven pace.

First-time jobless claims dropped by 8,000 to 470,000. Analysts had expected a steeper drop to 450,000. Separately, orders to U.S. factories for big-ticket items rose 0.3 per cent in December, much less than the two per cent economists had expected.

Robbie makes it into one Hall

Unlike Cooperstown, the Canadian Baseball Hall of Fame isn't wasting any time in adding Roberto Alomar to its ranks. The former Toronto Blue Jays second baseman will be enshrined at the museum in St. Marys, Ont., this summer after being named for induction Thursday. Earlier this month, Alomar missed out on being named for induction to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., by eight votes. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Serena stands in the way of Henin's storybook finish at Australian Open

"We bring out the best game in each other. I think that we both just play our hearts out. I think that's what creates a good rivalry." Serena Williams

TENNIS Even Serena Williams likes the story of Justine Henin's comeback.

It's an "amazing" tale, Williams said.

Only two tournaments into her return from a 20-month retirement, Henin has made it all the way to the Australian Open final. Her only obstacle to a happy ending Saturday is Williams.

"Justine hasn't been gone that long, but it's still a good story," said Williams, who has a long and intense rivalry with Henin that has never included a Grand Slam final.

The top-ranked Williams and the former No. 1 Henin have played 13 times, including six Grand Slam showdowns that went as far as only the semifinals. Serena holds a 7-6 edge in their overall matchups. In Grand Slams, Henin leads 4-2.

"We bring out the best game in each other," said the 28-year-old Williams. "I think that we both just play our hearts out. I think that's what creates a good rivalry."

The last time Williams played a Belgian at a Grand Slam, it didn't go so well. Williams' tirade over a line call in her U.S. Open semifinal against Kim Clijsters cost her a record $82,500 US fine.

Henin is usually cautious about sounding too optimistic. But she was elated Thursday after winning her semifinal against 2008 Wimbledon semifinalist Zheng Jie 6-1, 6-0. The match lasted 51 minutes and was the most lopsided semifinal at the Australian Open since Chris Evert beat Andrea Jaeger by the same score in 1982.

"I'm aware that this is extraordinary," the 27-year-old Henin said. "I never would have thought that when I got on the plane I would be here in the final of the Australian Open." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The case for Clara

Why Hughes should carry the Canadian flag

For a country that has not always been defined by patriotism, the choice of a flagbearer is one that most Canadians view as a sacred trust. It's a decision not taken lightly. The person selected has to be just right.

There are many qualified athletes out there but none fits the bill better than a cyclist turned speedskater named Clara Hughes.

It's awfully hard to argue against her.

Hughes transcends statistics and accomplishments on the field of play. Based on the fact that she is a five-time Olympian and the winner of five medals, as well as being the only Canadian to have ascended the podium at both the Winter and Summer Games, Hughes soars above most of the rest.

Her credentials as an athlete are beyond question.

As a human being who reflects Canada, Clara Hughes is more than distinguished.

She is a native of Winnipeg, who lives in Quebec and is fluent in both of the country's official languages. That has to count for something. Less tangible, but equally striking, is this 37-year-old woman's commitment to the Olympic movement and all it entails as well as the responsibility it demands.

Clara Hughes

As an ambassador of the humanitarian organization Right to Play, Hughes has devoted her time and money to ensure that the world's most disadvantaged children are positively affected by sport. In short, she represents the most elusive of all things — hope.

When asked recently to assess the meaning of being Canadian, Hughes responded by forwarding an essay she had written on the occasion of the nation's birthday.

"Racing through many of the areas where, historically speaking, Canada fought for freedom held a lot of weight," she wrote of her cycling training in Europe. "As a young person, it made me see that my country was indeed a special place."

Clara Hughes understands that being Canadian is a privilege and a way of living that conjures up strength. She discovered this on the start line of her first Olympic cycling race in Atlanta in 1996.

"It was an energy that I had never felt before," she admitted. "The mythology of the Olympics combined with that Maple Leaf on my back gave me a feeling of limitless possibilities. On that day I had all of Canada inside of me."

Clara Hughes is what Canada needs in a flagbearer.

She's someone for whom a country's expectations are never a burden but rather a way to be empowered.

One more to go

Murray is win away from ending Britain's drought

There he was, mouth agape, roaring like a Highlands warrior in full battle cry in Braveheart.

The force from Andy Murray's lungs seemed to add heft to the forehand winner he hurled down the line. The match turned there — in the fifth game of the second set — and it would not be long before the 22-year-old Scot was on his way to the Australian Open final.

After dropping serve twice in the opening set to Croatia's Marin Cilic, Murray recovered to win the semifinal 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 and reach his second Grand Slam final.

"It was really important because I don't want to say the match was slipping away from me, but the momentum was definitely with him," Murray said.

Now, with only top-ranked Roger Federer or Jo-Wilfried Tsonga ahead, he is one win from breaking a drought for British men at the four majors that dates to Fred Perry's Wimbledon victory in 1936.

That's a lot of pressure on Murray. It proved too much for the likes of Tim Henman, John Lloyd and others. Murray is the first British man to reach two Grand Slam finals in the Open era and the first to reach the Australian Open final since Lloyd in 1977. He will watch Friday night's semifinal between Federer, a three-time Australian champ, and Tsonga.

Bosh shows why he's an all-star as Raptors rally to defeat Knicks

All-star Chris Bosh had 27 points and 15 rebounds, Hedo Turkoglu set season highs with 26 points and 11 rebounds and the Toronto Raptors rallied to beat the New York Knicks 106-104 Thursday night.

Jarrett Jack made one of two free throws in the final seconds and drew a charging call on Al Harrington on New York's final possession, helping Toronto hold on for its fourth consecutive victory.

The Raptors, who erased a 13-point deficit Wednesday night in a 111-103 victory over Miami, have trailed by double digits in each game during their winning streak.

Earlier in the day, Bosh was named to the all-star game for the fifth straight season, tying Vince Carter for the most appearances in Raptors history. The game will be in Bosh's hometown of Dallas Feb. 14.

"Just to be able to be an all-star year in and year out, that's a special feeling, but the fact that it's in Dallas is kind of a bittersweet thing," Bosh said.

"Sweet because I get to play in front of my home crowd and it's bitter because everybody wants tickets." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On a collision course

Traditional favourites Canada, U.S. expected to play for gold

Four years ago, Sweden rocked the women's hockey world by upsetting the United States in the semi-finals at the Turin Olympics.

But don't expect a repeat in Vancouver.

While Finland and Sweden appear to be closing the gap between the North Americans and Scandinavians, the traditional world order in women's hockey will likely be re-established at the 2010 Games.

The Canadian and American hockey federations have put the full weight of their resources behind their Olympic teams and their preparation surpasses any other country.

For that reason, defending champion Canada and the U.S. are expected to meet for the gold medal Feb. 25 at Canada Hockey Place.

Sweden's semifinal win in Turin marked the first time Canada and the U.S. didn't meet in an Olympic or world championship final. Canada defeated the Swedes 4-1 for gold.

The Americans were ill-prepared in 2006. The players did not practise or play as many games together as they had for the 2002 Olympics in Salt Lake City. It showed.

The U.S. didn't skimp on preparation this time. Non-college players spent all of last winter together in Blaine, Minn. They were joined in August by collegiate players taking the school year off to play in the Olympics.

The U.S. has been the dominant country heading into the Games after winning back-to-back world championships for the first time. Only recently has Canada, winner of two straight Olympic gold medals, regained the upper hand against their American rivals with a 7-3 record in exhibition and tournament games since Aug. 1.

When women's hockey made its Olympic debut in Nagano, Japan in 1998, the U.S. won the first Olympic gold medal. Four years later, Canada took the gold in Salt Lake.

The U.S. aims to beat the Canadians on their home soil this time.

"We're not in this to finish second," says U.S. head coach Mark Johnson.

Finland and Sweden will likely battle for the bronze medal ahead of the rest of the field of Russia, China, Switzerland and Slovakia.

Tatum, all raw and naked

Heartthrob digs deep for Dear John role

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Movie feature

Channing Tatum has worked in his fair share of genres, from indie films (A Guide to Recognizing Your Saints) to dance flicks (Step Up) to blockbusters (G.I. Joe). In his latest, Dear John, the Alabama native takes on a heavy Nicholas Sparks love story under the direction of Lasse Hallstrom, who's no stranger to pulling breakthrough performances out of young actors.

"Lasse's a beast," Tatum says of his Swedish director.

"He has an allergic reaction to anything that's false. Even down to wardrobe. You don't argue. But acting-wise, he really gives you freedom. It's nerve-wracking and it makes you work harder."

Tatum remembers Hallstrom encouraging him to open up the way Leonardo DiCaprio did for What's Eating Gilbert Grape? That role led to DiCaprio's first Oscar nomination.

"He's says he's going to give you the same freedom he gave Leo in Gilbert Grape," Tatums says. "I had no idea what that meant. I was like, 'So you want me to be mentally challenged?'"

Part of preparing for Dear John, in which Tatum plays a young soldier torn between true love and duty, involved getting to know some actual Special Forces soldiers, many of whom appeared as extras in the film.

"They are gunslingers," Tatum says of the soldiers he met.

"They want to go. They view it as, like, recess. They get to go blow stuff up every day. When you get them away from their military stuff, they're just normal kids that are just a little crazier than most. And they're all insanely intelligent as well."

Tatum himself is a fan of blowing stuff up, but he admits acting in action films isn't quite the same as actually working with explosives.

"The blowing up stuff is fun, but they never let the actors be around that stuff. That's the stunt guys," he says. "They never let you do the fun stuff. If you do a bull-riding movie, you're never going to get to be on a bull."

That's why he prefers dramatic work like Dear John, he insists.

"Doing the emotional side is such a more extreme way to experience a film and to experience a character," he says.

"It's raw — naked at times. It's kind of scary because acting is one of the one jobs where you never really know if you got it right."

Tatum's next chance to try to get it right is The Eagle of the Ninth, a period action film set in Roman-ruled England and co-starring Jamie Bell.

"My favourite movies are Braveheart and Gladiator, so I've been looking for one of these movies for a long time," Tatum says, though he admits filming wasn't exactly easy.

"It's by far the hardest thing I've ever done. Not physically, but climate-wise. Don't ever go film a movie in Scotland. Like, ever.

"The people are amazing and it's beautiful, but you are going to be wet and soaked all the way through. It was harsh."

Channing Tatum and Amanda Seyfried pair up in Dear John.

Dear John opens next week

"Doing the emotional side is such a more extreme way to experience a film and to experience a character. ... It's kind of scary."

Grown Up Movie Star was shot in Newfoundland.

Director's touch redeems Movie Star's clichés

Grown Up Movie Star

Director: Adriana Maggs
Stars: Shawn Doyle, Tatiana Maslany
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●½

IAN GORMELY
for Metro Canada

REVIEW The 1990s indie-film boom brought with it a lot of films that looked at unconventional families. But while many sought out the sources of the dysfunction, few paid serious mind to the effect all the dysfunction had on the family members themselves, something that the debut feature from Toronto based, Newfoundland-born director Adriana Maggs has at its core.

Grown Up Movie Star's title character is, in fact, barely seen throughout the entire film. In the opening scene, a mother abandons her two children with her deadbeat husband to find fame and fortune as an actress in Hollywood. But from there on in, her presence is felt throughout the film's 95 minutes. Although barely able to look after himself, her husband Ray, an ex-NHL player, is left to raise Ruby and Rose while struggling with a growing recognition of his homosexuality.

If gay hockey players and crippled pedophiles seems like a bit much for one film, it almost is. Grown Up Movie Star teeters on the edge as clichés pile up. But Maggs manages to hold the whole thing together, anchored by some stellar performances.

Darkness edgy thriller

Edge of Darkness

Director: Martin Campbell
Stars: Mel Gibson, Ray Winstone
Classification: 14A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Mel Gibson plays a detective trying to solve his daughter's murder in Edge of Darkness.

Edge of Darkness is surprisingly satisfying, a small, taut thriller with enough fury and bursts of sudden violence to draw plenty of comparisons to last year's Taken.

While trying to solve his daughter's murder, an aging detective (Mel Gibson) stumbles into a vast corporate and government conspiracy, mucking things up enough for the power players to call in a high-priced clean-up man (Ray Winstone).

The driving force is Gibson, in a lead role for the first time since 2002's Signs.

His features lend themselves perfectly to an emotionally stunted man dealing with dueling swells of grief and rage.

This isn't really anything new for Gibson, who's been playing characters out for vengeance since Mad Max.

But Edge of Darkness does a great job of illustrating why he keeps coming back to these types of damaged, possessed men.

The only real misstep in the film is Gibson's Boston accent, which slips freely between a Good Will Hunting caricature and completely nonexistent. And the screen could've benefited from a bit more time with Winstone's mysterious fixer, but what scenes he does occupy are some of the best in the movie.

Yes Men perfect for all your satire needs

The Yes Men Fix The World

Directors: Andy Bichlbaum, Mike Bonanno, Kurt Engfehr
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Andy Bichlbaum and Mike Bonanno (a.k.a. The Yes Men) are two comedians/activists worthy of admiration. The political pranksters take swipes at big business and governmental irresponsibility through elaborate stunts designed to garner media attention.

The biggest venture in their latest film The Yes Men Fix The World sees Bichlbaum appear on BBC World News as a spokesperson for Dow Chemical announcing a multi-billion dollar payment plan to the victims of the 1985 explosion at a Union Carbide factory in India that killed 8,000. The stunt cost stockowners millions and drew attention to a tragedy that killed twice as many people as the 9-11 attacks, but was never accounted for.

Bichlbaum and Bonanno co-directed this most recent movie (after giving the reigns to Chris Smith in their self-titled 2003 doc), which was their only misstep.

While the stunts are brilliant and hilarious to watch unfold, the pair also devised staged comedic filler material that just doesn't play as well as it should.

These guys aren't primarily comedians, they are activists. They know exactly how to use comedy to make a point, but probably shouldn't be making jokes just for the sake of it. The Yes Men Fix The World demands to be seen by anyone with a taste for satire.

Bliss offers many pleasures

Bliss
Director: Abdullah Oguz
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●½

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

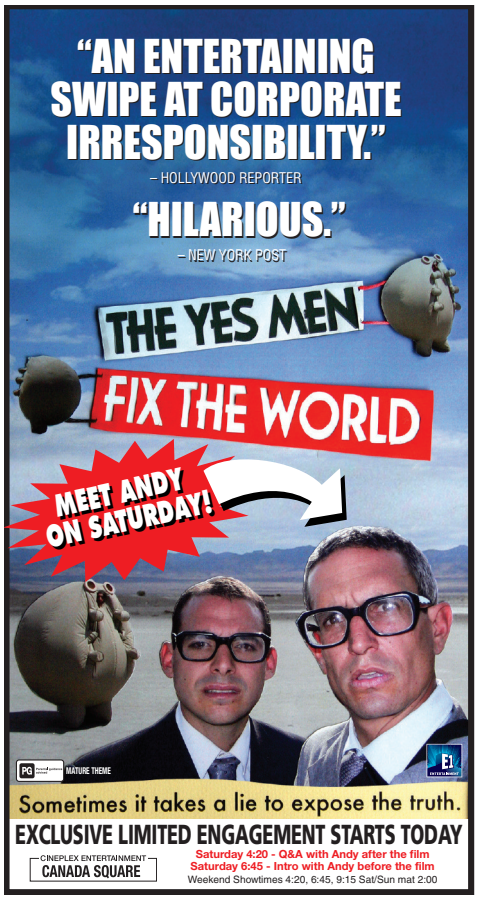
REVIEW It's hard to fathom that the cultural horror at the heart of the ironically titled Bliss is steeped in truth, but sadly, it is.

The film (based on the same named 2002 novel by Zulfu Livaneli) is set in contemporary rural Turkey, opening with stark, beautiful images of the arid countryside before settling on the battered form of the beautiful Meryem.

It seems young Meryem was raped and left on the side of the road and now, because of the fundamentalist muslim faith her family practises, she is required to commit suicide.

After her mother leaves her a rope with which to do the deed, Meryem is unable to go through with it and the task then falls on her macho cousin Cemal (Murat Han) to finish her off. He steals her away on a road trip, hiding his true mission but, after many encounters, finds himself at odds with his faith and unable to complete the revolting task at hand.

Part tragedy, part dark morality tale, and part thriller, Bliss is a haunting film of many sensual pleasures.



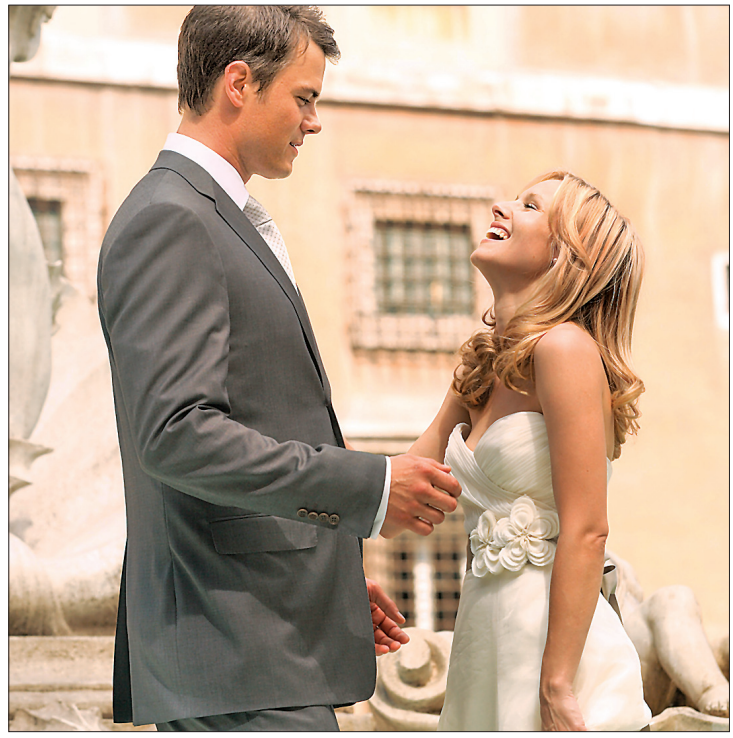
It's La Dolce vapid in Rome

When In Rome
Director: Mark Steven Johnson
Stars: Kristen Bell, Josh Duhamel
Classification: PG
Rating: ●½

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

When in Rome, the saying goes, do as the Romans do. But Mark Steven Johnson's comedy seems content merely to ape the behaviour of a zillion light romantic farces before it. The idea of an uptight career woman (in this case, Veronica Mars' Kristen Bell) letting her hair down in the face of true love is at least as old — and dusty — as the Colisseum.

Ah, but there's a magic-realist twist: Pulling bridesmaid duty at her sister's wedding in the old country, Bell meets a dashing dude (Josh Duhamel), gets miffed when she sees him with another woman, does a drunken Dolce Vita style vamp in a piazza fountain and plucks out five coins, invoking the wrath of some ancient love god — or hack screenwriters — and turning their original owners into comically love-struck stalker-suitors (a motley quartet numbering John Heder, Danny DeVito, Will Arnett and Dax Sheppard, the latter in amusing Zoolander-lite mode).



Josh Duhamel and Kristen Bell star in When In Rome.

As premises go, this falls somewhere between "strained" and "really silly," but what's really odd about When in Rome is its uncertainty of tone. One the one hand, Johnson seems to be going for a gentle, fairy-tale atmosphere — which is appropriate since the film has been produced by Disney — but there are also too many wink-wink innuendoes for a family audience. Johnson also attempts some weak hipster pandering by putting Heder in a scene with his Napoleon Dynamite sidekick Efren Ramirez (a.k.a. Pedro).

It's a desperate stab for cred in a movie that doesn't have much to speak of beyond cameos by Angelica Huston and Shaquille O'Neal.

Snooze-fest not without merit

La Donation
Director: Bernard Emond
Stars: Elise Guilbolt
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●½

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

REVIEW How one embraces or rejects Bernard Emond's somber new drama La Donation (aka The Legacy) depends squarely on one's tolerance for slow paced films. And, when I say slow, I mean slow. Like dripping molasses slow. Like paint drying, grass growing, slow. In fact this French Canadian picture is so slow that it makes Death in Venice seem like Blade 2 by comparison.

Which isn't to say that La Donation is bad or without merit. It's not. In fact writer/director Emond's third part of his trilogy of films examining hope, faith and now, in this case, charity, has many profound, often moving things to say about the relationship between doctors and patients. It's just that it takes a heck of a lot of patience to extract.

A scene from Bernard Emond's La Donation.

Doctor Dion (Elise Guilbolt who reprises her role from Emond's 2005 film, The Novena, the first in his trilogy) is called to a small Quebec town, to relieve ailing Dr. Rainville (Jacques Godin) for a temporary period. During her tenure however, she becomes more and more embroiled in the often tragic plights of the locals and before she knows it, leaving her station becomes the most difficult decision of her life.

Filled to the snoozing point with scene after scene of barren, desolate roads and chilly exteriors and loaded to the gills with sparse dialogue spoken in hushed tones by the vacant looking actors, La Donation is a litmus test for consciousness.

But there's a dignity to the film, a sense of high minded earnestness that bubbles quietly beneath its static exterior. Guilbolt has an interesting, square jawed, almost masculine face and acts chiefly with her wounded eyes; she's effective and the final shot alone is almost worth the price of the triple espresso you'll need to reach it.

Buscemi's big gamble

HEIDI PATALANO
Metro World News

Since his landmark role in the Coen Brothers' 1996 masterpiece, Fargo, Steve Buscemi has made a career of playing ill-fated underdogs. As executive producer and lead actor in his latest project, St. John of Las Vegas, that persona hasn't changed much, but Buscemi found that joy comes from working with first-time directors, like this project's Hue Rhodes. Metro caught Buscemi in transit.

Steve Buscemi stars in St. John of Las Vegas.

St. John of Las Vegas opens in theatres next Friday

Q Your character in St. John is a gambler. You play the slots much?

A No. I'm not really. I'm too cheap. In order to win big you have to bet big.

I'm just not willing to do that. It's fun to play a little black jack or roulette but no, I feel like life is enough of a gamble.

Q You've mentioned you like working with first-time directors, but they must make a lot of rookie mistakes. Why work with them?

A It kind of brings you back to your own roots, to feel like what it is to start new again.

I like having that fresh perspective of someone who is really discovering things and experimenting and has a certain kind of enthusiasm that you really only get with first-timers.

Q Do you find there's a common thread in all the characters you've portrayed?

A I mean, I like playing guys who have problems and are struggling.

I like material that has humor in it. Other than the fact that they're all played by me, I don't know that there are other common threads.

Q What's the best advice you've ever been given?

A When I was preparing to direct the first film I did, Trees Lounge a cinematographer friend of mine said to let people do their jobs.

I thought that was a really great piece of advice because when you let people do their jobs, they really give so much more of themselves and it gives you a greater choice as a director.

Corpo is a moody, stylish challenger

Corpo (Body)
Director: Rubens Rewald and Rossana Foglia
Stars: Leonardo Medeiros
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●½

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

REVIEW I think it was David Cronenberg who once observed about how humans are at their most vulnerable during sex and surgery. On a purely physical level, this is probably true, hence the enduring visceral appeal of the medical thriller, one of the latest of which is the noir-ish, slightly surreal creeper, Corpo (or, in English, Body).

The Brazilian film (the directorial debut of spouses Rubens Rewald and Rossana Foglia) is a chilly, often erotic and sometimes gruesome, murder mystery that, like so many of these types of pictures, uses the arcane world of forensics as its backdrop. But unlike the slick, glossy and breakneck pulp of say, CSI (pick a town, they're all pretty much the same), Corpo is earthy and deeply, grippingly weird.

Leonardo Medeiros plays Artur, a neurotic mortician who becomes obsessed with the identity of a recently dead woman and, more specifically with the possible ways in which she both lived her life and met her death.

As the film slips in and out of Artur's fevered fantasies, a woman claiming to be the victim's daughter pops up (Rejane Arruda) and the already odd drama begins to twist in tense, unexpected directions.

Filled with stomach churning scenes of post-mortem gore and boasting a cold, clinical palette somewhat resembling a SAW picture, Corpo is a moody, stylish thriller that alternately challenges, engages, stimulates, surprises and repels. Highly recommended.

Green creates high-anxiety film

STEVE GOW
Metro World News

With his 1944 thriller Lifeboat, legendary auteur Alfred Hitchcock proved that just by setting a group of survivors in a boat at sea for an entire picture, you could create cinematic magic. Filmmaker Adam Green has the same theory about ski resort chair lifts.

"When you first tell people it's about three people who get stranded on a chair, at first they think, 'Well, you can't make a movie out of that,'" explained Green during an interview to promote his new thriller Frozen. "(But) it's the type of thing that strikes a chord with everybody who hears about it. Especially if you've ever skied, you know what that feeling is like when the chair stops — the first thing that goes through your mind is, could I jump from here?"

Movie feature

Simple as it sounds, the premise about a trapped young trio struggling with the elements, issues of acrophobia and a hungry pack of wolves does present a commanding chronicle of high anxiety which Green admits was influenced by the likes of Lifeboat and Steven Spielberg's Jaws.

"You would never want this thrill in real life," said Green, equating the tension to the experience of going on a rollercoaster.

"You want to know what it's like but you want to do it in a way where you know at any moment you can leave or it's going to be over and you're going to be safe — that's sort of the big thing with these (types of) films."

Adam Green

Green isn't shy to credit the courage of his young cast either.

In fact, Green relied on tempered Canadians Shawn Ashmore (X-Men) and Kevin Zegers (Transamerica) after announcing he was going to shoot the film in sub-zero temperatures on a real mountain — a prospect that scared off many young American thespians.

"Guys like Kevin and Shawn realized that this was a chance to be onscreen for 90 minutes where the entire movie rests on their shoulders," said Green. "Every night they were bringing everything they had to the point that they couldn't physically stand up when they got off that chair, they were so exhausted."

Big Bop turns off the music

Popular all-ages venue shutting its doors

KEITH CARMAN
for Metro Canada

Toronto is suffering a great loss and most don't even know it.

One of the city's live music venues, The Big Bop (651 Queen St. W.), is slated to close this Sunday, to be turned into a retail furniture store.

Yes, clubs shutter all the time. However, The Bop was the last survivor in a long line of independent mom-and-pop music halls dedicated to entertaining our city's youth via non-licensed concerts. After 15 years of hosting all-ages shows and becoming renowned among bands, parents and kids across the GTA, its demise marks the end of any concert hall of this sort downtown; one less reason for youth to bring their disposable income to the city's core.

"Alexisonfire, Billy Talent, Cancer Bats ... this is where they saw bands in their youth and decided to dedicate themselves to music."
Domenic Tassielli

"There aren't enough good all-ages venues in Toronto," notes Logan Broger, an uptown youth frustrated at a childhood of underage music fandom with few avenues to pursue it. "I've missed out on all my favourite bands in the past few years because they can only find 19-plus clubs (to play)."

Sure, it sounds melodramatic, but it's true. The all-ages concert venue is crucial to urban infrastructure, offering youth the opportunity to forge friendships with like-minded individuals, a space to escape familial trappings, spend some money and spread fledgling wings with a sense of independence, even if mom and dad are waiting in the car. That is, unless they're in on the fun, enthusiastically introducing offspring to their own musical addictions.

In essence, all-ages venues let a kid be a kid but test the waters of adult autonomy. With The Bop closing, not only is Hogtown losing a vital piece of its musical heritage but one of its most enduring, respectable and trustworthy babysitters — not to mention a cornerstone of our local and international music scene.

"The bands you see coming from Toronto, they all passed through my doors as kids. That's where they learned about music," notes Big Bop owner Domenic Tassielli, offering first-hand knowledge and yet another viewpoint on the influence all-ages venues can hold.

"Alexisonfire, Billy Talent, Cancer Bats ... this is where they saw bands in their youth and decided to dedicate themselves to music. I didn't realize the impact of it until The Bop was forced to close. Then I had people of all ages telling me how it played a vital role in forming their lives; that if they didn't come here and get into music, they might have gotten into drugs or trouble or whatever."

Tassielli adds that when concertgoers of all ages are involved, a venue and its past quickly become a bridge in otherwise insurmountable generational gaps, an experience no longer available in this city.

"I'll be out with my family and other parents get excited to tell me about going to The Bop when they were young. And then their kids say how they come here now. It's multiple ages. How do you get that without an all-ages venue?"

When media went mobile

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

With all the hoopla surrounding Apple's iPad this week, I thought it might be fun to look back at some of the portable media devices that rocked our world.

The Regency TR-1 (1954): At $50, it was hideously expensive for its time, but those who could afford it need never share that giant console radio in the living room with mom and dad. Teenagers were free to take their own music — this new thing called "rock 'n' roll" — with them everywhere. As a result, the TR-1 and its descendents allowed rock to launch its social, economic, artistic, political and sexual revolution.

The 8-Track (1964): Jointly developed by Ford, GM, Motorola, AMPEX and the guy behind the Lear Jet company, the 8-track meant that music fans no longer had to wait for their favourite songs to come on the radio.

The Cassette (1964): Invented at the same time, the cassette needed for tape formulations to improve to the point where it sounded as good as — and eventually better than — 8-tracks. And because it was much easier to transfer music from records to cassettes, the mixtape was born. Record labels began freaking out over home taping.

The Sony Walkman TPS-L2 (1979): Look around. See all those people who have isolated themselves from the rest of humanity by plugging into some kind of device that envelopes them in their own private bubble of sound? Before the Walkman, this kind of behavior was considered to be highly antisocial. That's why the TPS-L2 originally came with two headphone jacks.

The new Apple iPad is a mobile tablet browsing device that is a cross between the iPhone and a MacBook laptop.

The Diamond Multimedia Rio PMP300 (1998): Not the first MP3 player — that distinction goes to the MP3 Man from a Korean company called Sae-Han — but the one that forced the courts in America to rule that such devices were, in fact, legal. Where might we be had those judges ruled the other way?

The iPod (2001): When Steve Jobs returned to Apple, he decreed that a big part of the company's future was in something he called the "digital hub," with the perfect portable music device at its core. Some 225 million units later…

The Future (2010-?): Who knows? If there's one thing we've learned since the TR-1, it's not the device itself that's important, but what the device allows us to do and the behaviors that result. Continue to expect many unintended and unforeseen consequences.

Television

Tarnished reputation?

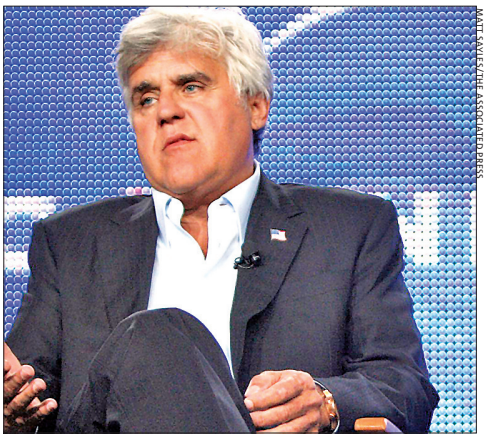
Time will tell if Leno can take back the late knight crown

Certainly Jay Leno would love to wake up to find that the last six months was just a nightmare.

That way, he'd be preparing another Tonight show monologue, not going on the national shrink's sofa across from Oprah Winfrey, as he was Thursday. He wouldn't have seen a photo of himself doctored to look battered on the cover of Entertainment Weekly, symbolizing television's biggest flop ever. And he wouldn't have heard the rough jokes with the serious subtext that he had sandbagged Conan O'Brien.

NBC is hoping that it all goes away, too. The network won't know until March 1 whether he's been permanently damaged or not by the disastrous decision to try him in prime time and the clumsy way he recovered his old job. March 1 is when Leno returns to late night, opposite David Letterman on CBS.

"He's going to be competitive and I think his audience is going to come back over time," says Jeff Gaspin, NBC Universal Entertainment chairman.



MATT SAYLES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Returning Tonight show host Jay Leno has been vilified for taking back a job he plainly didn't want to leave in the first place, despite promising more than five years ago that he would.

Except for the Winfrey interview, Leno will do little talking after his 10 p.m. EST show ends Feb. 9, making way for coverage of the Winter Olympics. NBC will promote his return to late night but in a low-key fashion since it's been only a few months that it hyped his prime time show, Gaspin said.

"We're going to do it with a little humour and we're going to do it with a little wink to the audience," he said. "We know they know what's going on."

The 10 p.m. show, cancelled because affiliates complained about its low ratings, instantly transformed Leno's public image into that of a failure after a 15-year run as the king of late-night television.

Meanwhile, his Tonight show successor, Conan O'Brien, despite being a ratings failure himself, became a folk hero when he wouldn't accept NBC's plan to move his Tonight show to 12:05 a.m. EST to accommodate Leno's shortened comedy program. Late night host talks to Oprah

- Jay Leno told Oprah Winfrey on Thursday's episode of her talk show that he thinks what happened to Conan O'Brien is "unfair." Leno also says he has "regrets" that the situation wasn't handled better — but he isn't sure what he could have done differently.

Lachey on Taking the Stage

It's like Fame — the movie that showcased the dreams and disappointments of high school performers — but in real life.

That's how Nick Lachey describes the second season of Taking the Stage, the reality TV show that follows high school students at The School for Creative and Performing Arts (SCPA) in Cincinnati as they work to break in to the entertainment industry. The show airs Thursdays at 11 p.m. on MTV.

"It's a great kind of learning ground for anyone who wants to be in entertainment and anyone who loves performing," says Lachey, the show's executive producer. "I think the school really prepares you for what the business is all about."

Lachey, a pop singer and actor, attended the school himself and knows firsthand the how an aspiring entertainer struggles to make it. After graduating from SCPA in 1992, he formed the boy band 98 Degrees and launched a successful solo career. In 2003-2005, he starred with then-wife Jessica Simpson in the MTV reality series Newlyweds: Nick and Jessica.

Nick Lachey

Other notable SCPA alumni include Sarah Jessica Parker, Carmen Electra and Lachey's brother and 98 Degrees alum, Drew.

This season's Taking the Stage follows Tyler, now a senior at SCPA and Mia, who has been trying to get her new band off the ground since graduation. We'll also meet new students — including Adam, Emily Silber, Emily Sones, Carlton and Ian — who all try to navigate their way to fame by way of high school.

The show resonates with viewers, Lachey says. "People are attracted to good performance and seeing young people follow their dreams," he says. "I think we see some of ourselves in kids."

Lost art of love letters

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

Despite producing the Valentine-tinged TV special Love Letters, Leah Pinsent doesn't have a romantic story surrounding her first meeting with her partner — fellow actor Peter Keleghan.

"No. We weren't star-crossed lovers or anything. It took some time," says Pinsent, who first met Keleghan when they were both starring on the CBC comedy Made In Canada in Halifax.

"I think it was fourth season in. It was a crazy love once it got started but we were both married at the start. So it was complicated. It was what it was."

Still — nine years in — it seems to be working out. So much so, the acting pair have teamed up for Love Letters — a meditation on generational love featuring excerpts from A.R. Gurney's play about would-be lovers who correspond solely through letters.

The excerpts are performed not only by Pinsent and Keleghan, but additional real life acting couples like Colin Mochrie (Whose Line Is It Anyway) and Deb McGrath (Little Mosque on the Prairie), Carlo Rota (24) and Nazneen Contractor (The Border), and Samantha Bee and Jason Jones (The Daily Show). The host is Leah's dad Gordon Pinsent.

In between excerpts from the play, the couples talk about their curious romantic lives as working actors/lovers.

"I'd seen When Harry Met Sally and I loved the parts where the real couples talk about their relationships, so we wanted to do that," says Pinsent with a laugh. "I'm just happy they're since we filmed it, our couples are all still together."

Pinsent says actors hooking up is no different than any two people with similar goals.

Success or failure depends on the match-up.

"Some stay together. Some don't. I think maybe actors can be more emotional, personally. But it ultimately depends on the people."

Pinsent laments the death of people actually writing letters to friends and family. Still, she admits that she isn't exactly a practitioner herself.

"I'd like to say I write letters, but I don't. I think my mother was the one who really loved to do that.

"It's a lost art I guess. Like putting photos in an album."

This is history as gripping as any spy novel.

Bachman takes Vinyl Tap live

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

By the time most people hit 67, they've retired and are spending winters lounging by a Florida pool. Not Randy Bachman. Not only does the Guess Who guitarist still work, he may be the busiest musician in the country.

When I called Bachman at his Salt Spring Island home, he revealed that he had just returned from Winnipeg, his former stomping ground, where he recorded a new record with Fred Turner, his old bandmate in BTO. The record and subsequent tour is in addition to his gigs with his other old bandmate Burton Cummings, his work as a solo artist and his ongoing job as host of CBC's Vinyl Tap. Clearly, he's working pretty hard.

"I just wait at home for the phone to ring," he says, seriously. "It's the phone calls and the offers to do something that keep me excited."

While I briefly chatted with him about his many projects, it was his CBC radio show that warranted the call this time. Actually, he wasn't talking about his time behind the mic — in true Bachman fashion, the restless musician has turned his show into a live performance.

On Friday, Saturday and Sunday Bachman, his wife Denise McCann and host of other musicians will reproduce his Guitarology radio series for an audience at Toronto's Glen Gould Studio. The show, saw Bachman discuss various guitar brands — like Fender, Gibson and Rickenbacker — and then played music by bands who used those specific axes.

His live show will be similar — he's bringing 10 guitars, including an old Fender Telecaster that he's had for years — but instead of playing recorded music, his band will perform the songs live. "We'll be playing The Byrds and The Beatles, All Along the Watchtower and Eric Clapton," he says, admitting that he won't have time to play all of the 48 songs he'd like to.

If it goes well, Bachman hopes to take the show on the road. He's planning a stop in Vancouver and there's interest from Winnipeg and Calgary. He says he wants to be like that other travelling CBC host, Stuart McLean, and take his show right across the country.

As popular as this might become, he's not giving up his radio gig. It's one of the most listened to shows in Canada and he's still collecting music, not to mention all the records he has lying around his house, that he wants to share.

"I buy new things all the time," he says. "I picked up Lada Gaga's record. I'm going to play her along side Vic Damone and Elvis Presley."

Ugliness becomes beautiful at gallery

JOHN KEILLOR
for Metro Canada

The AGO's new etchings exhibition, comparing portraits by Rembrandt to Lucien Freud's, is an artistic conversation spanning over three centuries. Both men worked to reveal the human soul. Their honest, unflattering kindred styles remain alive.

Subtitling this exhibit, True to Life, the AGO offers viewers a chance to see how even ugliness can be beautiful, if the artist explores what is really in our hearts, rather than what we want people to see.

"They don't simply record the exterior of their subjects," explains curator Brenda Rix by phone.

"Rembrandt and Freud seem to be able to convey the emotional life of the sitter. This was a demanding process. Freud has people sit for hours and hours, for months. He doesn't have them pose in any way. He searches for their essence."

ART GALLERY OF ONTARIO REMBRANDT HARMENSZ. VAN RIJN

Rembrandt's Self Portrait in a Velvet Cap with Plume, etching on paper, circa 1638.

Freud is 87. Rembrandt died in 1669. Nonetheless, their work has lots in common. They both regarded etching and print making as art, like painting or sculpture. Their portraits have a weird magnetic quality, as if they have been etched form the inside out. This makes viewers often unconsciously try and peer into the etchings, as if they were 3-D. Prettiness is unimportant; the subject's humanity is the thing. Both men composed lots of self portraits, with deep eyes and unhandsome expressions.

"Freud calls his portraits, "naked people," not "nudes," because nudes are paid models," says Rix. "Rembrandt also painted ordinary people. In his Naked Woman Seated on a Mound, you can see scars and blemishes. She's robust, not a goddess. In the 17th century, that was shocking."

Freud and Rembrandt seem disinterested in conventional portrait painting, where someone pays an artist to capture their image, except probably taller and thinner. Top portrait painters have traditionally been very well compensated.

• True To Life opens Saturday at the Art Gallery of Ontario and runs through to May 23.

Elfman finds funny

Jenna Elfman knows comedy. She starred in Dharma&Greg from 1997-2002 and won a Golden Globe Award and was nominated twice for an Emmy.

Now, Elfman plays a 30-ish movie critic who has a one-night stand with a guy in his 20s on CBS' Accidentally on Purpose Mondays, 8:30 p.m. EST).

She ends up pregnant and the two decide to raise the baby together. Elfman, 38, who is pregnant with her second child in real life, talks about her show and finding the funny in life

Q Do you like the pairing of your character, Billie, and the father of her child, Zach, on Accidentally on Purpose?

A I like playing them as a couple because they're so different and they have such a great friendship, and it's been a lot of fun playing it and I'm kind of liking playing that.

Q Will future episodes focus more on the age difference between Zach and Billie?

A It's always going to present difficulties and their whole point of reference is different… It's someone who has a lot of life experience and someone with minimal life experience trying to raise a kid and find out who they are together.

Q Is playing pregnant while you're pregnant easier?

A The whole universe of being pregnant is a very specific, particular sensation for a woman so being pregnant while playing pregnant is really cool.

Q Your comedic timing is interesting and you're great with snappy dialogue. Do you work at that?

A It's nothing I sit around and think about… I just love comedy and I love sitcoms. I think if you really look, there's a lot that's funny in life… I'm always people-watching like nonstop, and I think doing that I've become educated into humorous rhythms from different moments in life.

Italy's best kept secret spots

EMMA E. FORREST
Metro World News

METRO WORLD NEWS

Contrary to popular guidebook belief there's more to Italy than pizza, pasta and popes.

Italy — art, pizza, popes, fashion and gangsters right? Well, up to a point. With its fabulous Renaissance heritage, inimitable sense of style, big Tuscan landscapes and brash cities, Italy does do flashiness rather well.

But there's another side this most complex of countries — an Italy of quiet beauty, and relaxed ease. Metro pinpoints three of Italy's best kept secrets.

Apulia

Occupying most of the heel of Italy Apulia offers pristine beaches, fascinating architecture, and some of the most productive and delicious vineyards in Italy (which produce one in 10 of the glasses of wine drunk in Europe). Blissfully free of Euro-hordes who head for Tuscany, for city stuff don't miss the Graeco Roman beauty of Lecce (especially Santa Croce) and for beaches try Marina di Pescoluse known locally as Little Maldives.

Cilento

Sort of the where the laces would be on the boot of Italy, this isolated and mountainous region south of Salerno has a coastline far more beautiful than that of the better-known Amalfi to the north. The vast Cilens and contains some of Europe's most breath-taking landscapes.

Ancient remains, medieval monasteries, Renaissance palaces, and Baroque churches are there in abundance in this truly unspoiled region. Best beaches are tucked into the rugged terrain around Palinuro. Best Italy experience is at Maratea — a tiny cluster of houses with more churches than bars. It's more Italian than a spaghetti bolognese served by an opera singer

Hidden gems dot the Italian coastline.

Ponza and the Pontine Islands

Had enough of historical ruins? Then the Pontine Islands, the favoured chill-out zone of major fashionistas Fendi and Valentino, are for you.

Visitors to these tiny islands just off the coast of Lazio are almost 100 per cent Italian and they make relaxation into an art form.

It's basically a beach/scuba/ sailing deal but the scale (the largest island Ponza has only 300 residents) gives it a fabulously exclusive feel.

For beaches try Chiaia di Luna, connected to Ponza town by a 55 metre Roman tunnel through solid rock. Or hire a boat and find a private beach among the many that fringe the islands.

Sopranos still run New York

RICHARD MORIARTY
Metro World News

When the Sopranos first aired in January 1999, no-one could have predicted its phenomenal success. Six seasons and 86 shows later, it was recently voted the best TV show of the last decade.

The final episode finished more than two years ago, but show fans still flock to New York for the Sopranos tour and take in Tony's favourite mob spots.

I joined them for a fascinating trip around New Jersey and New York.

But the tour begins we're treated to a visit from Vito Spatafore, played by Joseph Gannascoli.

"You'll love the tour," he says, before adding a gangsterish "Noone ever complains."

With that we head off into the Lincoln Tunnel and, with the show's music ringing in our ears, we go under the Hudson River and into New Jersey, home of Tony Soprano.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Tours of Soprano sites still dominate New York tourism.

Where to stay, what to see

- Stay at the Gansevoort Hotel. Prices start at $425/night and it's located in New York City's trendy Meatpacking district (hotelgansevoort.com)
- See the Satin Dolls club in Lodi, NJ. The Bada Bing club, tourists queue for souvenirs as scantily clad girls go through their dance routines.

First stop is at a diner under the Pulaski Skyway where Tony's protégé character Christopher Moltisanti was shot in a botched assassination attempt.

Holsten co-owner Chris Carley says: "To this day people come in here and ask us, what the heck happened?"

The tour, operated by On Location Tours (screentours.com; tickets $42, 212-209-3370) finishes at the Satin Dolls club in Lodi, otherwise known to Sopranos-viewers as the Bada Bing club.

Pete, pick another pocket

PREFERABLY ONE WITHOUT COPIOUS AMOUNTS OF NARCOTICS STUFFED INTO IT Pete Doherty has nearly as many drug and driving offenses to his name as he has years spent on this planet. On Tuesday, the Babyshambles frontman was slapped on the wrist for his latest offense — bringing 13 doses of heroin into a drunk-driving hearing, popeater.com reports. An English court handed him only a $1,400 US fine. But it's about to get worse for the embattled tabloid prince. Maybe a whole lot worse after friend Robin Whitehead was found dead of an overdose just a day after visiting the rocker, the website adds.

Doherty was in court for sentencing on Dec. 21 for June charges of driving carelessly while drunk and in possession of drugs when "13 wraps of heroin" fell from his pocket. "He was in a rush to get to court. He was handed a coat and he didn't check the pockets," his lawyer explained to the judge on Tuesday. The popular musician pleaded guilty to the December charges. He was ordered to pay $3,300 in fines and was banned from driving for 18 months. The drugs fell out of his pockets upon his exiting the courthouse.

His lawyer explained to the court that Doherty "is a recovering heroin addict and has received some very sophisticated medical treatment."

Because he is currently in treatment, and is reportedly using medical implants that cancel the effects of heroin, Judge Boparai decided against using the "public purse" to rehabilitate the singer.

Just call him 'Prez'

IS THIS THE TYPE OF PLACE THAT THEY SHOULD SEND THIS COOL CAT? Will Smith is thinking about a career change, according to his wife, Jada Pinkett Smith, who's not exactly thrilled about it.

"Will is thinking about going into politics. He once said he could imagine becoming a U.S. president. He wasn't joking, he was quite serious about it," Pinkett Smith says, according to Hollyscoop. But politics isn't exactly up her alley.

"It's just not for me," she insists. Whether or not a run for the White House is in their future, Pinkett Smith says they are thinking about the bigger picture, though. "Will and I want to leave traces on this planet — and with that I mean more important traces than just films."

Husband sues studio

ALSO SUING THE GRIM REAPER Simon Monjack is planning to sue Warner Brothers for the wrongful death of his wife, Brittany Murphy, the Daily Beast reports.

Two weeks prior to Murphy's sudden death on Dec. 20 at age 32, the studio fired her from the sequel to the animated smash Happy Feet, where she was to reprise the role of penguin Gloria. "She was devastated," Monjack tells the Daily Beast's Gerald Posner. "They killed her."

Murphy's cause of death has yet to be released by the L.A. coroner's office — but Monjack and the star's mother, Sharon Murphy, both believe that the Clueless actress suffered a heart attack as a direct result of her cancelled contract.

Tiger has been a very bad boy

SOMEONE'S BEEN A NAUGHTY GOLFER A woman who claims to have been a paid escort for Tiger Woods doesn't think the golfer's stint in sex rehab will do the trick, usmagazine.com reports.

"I am not really sure rehab for sex addition will help him," Loredana Jolie, who claims to have slept with Woods on numerous occasions, tells the New York Post. Woods' rep would not return calls to The Post regarding her allegations.

Jolie says she worked as an escort for "madam" Michelle Braun, who claimed in December that Woods was a client. Also known as Loredana Ferriolo, the Sicilian-born woman says of her trysts Woods, "He would engage in sex from 9 p.m. until the sun came up the next morning. But he wasn't a healthy guy. He couldn't sleep and would stay up all night."

Jolie alleges that the 34-year-old golfer's sexual fantasies were "not normal." Among his supposed wants: "entertaining, role play, fetishes, stuff like that … but he would only watch … he would also ask me to text him pictures of myself when we weren't together."

REMEMBER, KIDS, WISDOM-TOOTH REMOVAL AND PNEUMONIA LEAD TO DRUG ABUSE Charlie Sheen's wife, Brooke Mueller, is currently resting in a rehab facility in South Carolina, her father tells Radar Online, though he wouldn't confirm what she's in rehab for. "She is recognizing that she needs help and she can't do it on her own," Jon Fiore tells the website. "She is there. But it's a recovery place, and it is in a resort setting and the picture I'd like to paint more is that she's seeking help she wants to, she's dealing with this."
